Brush fire erupts

About 100 Ottawa firefighters were still working Sunday evening to contain a brush fire covering approximately 2.4 hectares in Carp.

"Right now we're just sending the guys back in to work on hot spots around the perimeter, and hopefully we'll have this thing contained soon and under control long after that," said Ottawa Fire Services spokesman Marc Messier.

The fire was first reported at 12:36 p.m. on Sunday at the end of Holland Hill Road, off Carp Road, and about half a kilometre from Hidden Lake subdivision. No homes were evacuated.

"We'll probably be here for a couple days," Messier said. STEVE COLLINS/FOR METRO

Hotspots a worry

A brush fire near Moodie Drive remained under control Sunday, staying within the same 40- to 50-hectare area, but firefighters are still dealing with 10 to 20 hot spots a day, said Ottawa Fire Services spokesman Marc Messier.

Firefighters deployed extra equipment and crew Saturday as wind caused more flare-ups. The fire started July 12 and hot, dry weather has extended it.

"We're probably going to continue to be there for at least another week unless we get lucky and get some rain," Messier said.

Details emerge about Aurora rampage suspect

Colorado. Suspect was serious science student; denied entry to gun club

Shooting suspect James Holmes applied to join a Colorado gun range last month but never became a member because of his behaviour and a "bizarre" message on his voice mail greeting, the range's owner said Sunday.

Holmes, 24, emailed an application to join the Lead Valley Range on June 25, said owner Glenn Rotkovich.

But when Rotkovich called to invite him to a mandatory orientation, he said he heard Holmes' voice mail greeting, which was "bizarre — guttural, freakish at best." Rotkovich said he left three messages but eventually told his staff to watch for Holmes at the orientation and not to accept him into the club not to accept him into the club. Holmes is being held without bond on suspicion of multiple counts of first-degree murder after a shooting rampage minutes into a premiere of the new Batman film The Dark Knight Rises on Friday. It left 12 people dead and 58 wounded. He is scheduled for an initial hearing Monday and has been assigned a public defender.

The gunman's semiautomatic assault rifle jammed during the attack, forcing him to switch to another gun with less firepower, a federal lawenforcement official said. That malfunction and weapons switch during the rampage might have saved some lives.

The University of Colorado said Sunday it was looking into whether Holmes used his position as a graduate student to order materials in the potentially deadly booby traps that police said they found in his apartment. The suspect was described as a budding scientist, brimming with potential, who pursued a graduate program even as he planned the attack with "calculation and deliberation," police said.

Investigators spent hours removing the explosive materials Saturday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Norway. Anniversary of massacre commemorated

Norway on Sunday paused to commemorate the 77 victims of a bomb-and-gun massacre that shocked the peaceful nation one year ago, a tragedy that the prime minister said had brought Norwegians together in defence of democracy and tolerance.

In a wreath-laying ceremony at the bomb site, Prime Minister Jens Stoltenberg said Breivik had failed in his declared goal of destroying Norway's commitment to being an inclusive, multicultural society.

"The bomb and the gun shots were meant to change Norway," Stoltenberg told a sombre crowd of a few hundred people at the ceremony. "The Norwegian people answered by embracing our values. The perpetrator lost. The people won."

The attack

Anders Behring Breivik, a 33-year-old fanatic, has admitted to the July 22, 2011, attacks: a bombing in the government district in Oslo, killing eight, and a shooting rampage that left 69 dead at the left-wing Labour Party's youth camp on Utoya island.

Tarps are still covering the windows of bomb-damaged buildings on the plaza, and large cement road blocks stop all but pedestrian traffic. Mounted police and officers with bomb-sniffing dogs were on site Sunday, but the security was not overbearing, as if to show that Norway was still an open society. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Al-Qaida. Leader of Iraq chapter promises return to regional prominence

The first online statement from the new leader of al-Qaida's affiliate in Iraq claims that the militant network is returning to the old strongholds from which it was driven by U.S. forces and their Sunni allies prior to the American withdrawal at the end of last year, and that it is preparing operations to free prisoners and assassinate court officials

The audio identifies the speaker as Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi, who became head of the Islamic State of Iraq (ISI) in 2010. It was posted late Saturday on a website regularly used by the militant movement to make statements.

Al-Baghdadi also invited Muslims to come to Iraq to join his movement and warned the United States that it would soon see militant attacks on its territory, although it is unclear whether he was referring to attacks by his Iraqi network or by other al-Qaida affiliates.

The statement comes as Sunni insurgents, now believed to be dominated by the ISI, step up attacks against Shiites, government officials and other targets, in what is seen as a bid to undercut the authority of Iraq's state and revive sectarian conflict in the wake of the pullout of the last American forces in the country in December.

But as yet there is little indication that the largescale fighting between sectarian groups that wracked the country in 2006 and 2007 will return, nor does al-Qaida appear to have restored the domination it once had over many Sunni communities in that period.

New database needs DNA, families say

Lindsey's Law. Index meant to help identify missing persons and unidentified remains won't draw on DNA Data Bank, thanks to government concerns

A national database to help identify missing persons and unidentified remains is more than a year away, but families and experts say that DNA is the missing piece of the puzzle that the initiative needs.

Judy Peterson has been a proponent of such a database since her daughter, Lindsey Jill Nicholls, went missing in 1993.

Peterson started a petition in 2003 called Lindsey's Law, calling for DNA from missing persons and unidentified remains to be added to the National DNA Data Bank, which was set up in 2000 to help police with their investigations.

A new index called the National Centre for Missing Persons and Unidentified Remains would store descriptive information on these cases and allow for them to be compared nationally for the first time when it launches in late 2013, but it won't include DNA.

The federal government has been resistant to amending the National DNA Data Bank to include the thousands of missing persons and hundreds of unidentified bodies across the country. It cites privacy concerns and high costs.

Few celebrate third anniversary of end of Great Recession

Global recovery. Three years on and trillions spent, economies still fragile in U.S. and Europe, while Canada's progress is deceiving Few are noting the occasion, but about now Canada and the rest of the world should be celebrating the third anniversary marking the end of the Great Recession.

It was in the third quarter of 2009 — the July-September months — that Canada and many other major advanced nations began to breathe a little easier in the knowledge they had peered into the economic abyss and somehow survived.

Yet there are no signs of rejoicing, or even relief.

At separate stock-taking events last week, U.S. Federal Reserve chairman Ben Bernanke. Bank of Canada gov-

Aiming for average

On a per-capita basis, Canadians are still not back to where they were before the 2008-09 crisis.

 Per-capita GDP in inflation-adjusted dollars peaked at $40,015.79 in the fourth quarter of 2007, and had only returned to $39,648.11 in the first quarter this year.

ernor Mark Carney and the International Monetary Fund each had different versions of the same message — the global economy still hangs by a thread, growth is painfully slow and full employment is years away.

Europe is suffering through a Japan-style lost decade.

Canadians have been told repeatedly they have done better than most, and the message has become the reality.

France's L'Express magazine last week declared Canada No. 1 in a cover story, encouraging readers to pack up and head to the promised land.

The reality is a little more nuanced, though Canada looks awfully good next to much of Europe, which is now expected to be in recession the rest of the year.

But even in Canada, things might have turned out better. The first full year of recovery saw the output expand by an acceptable 3.2 per cent, but slow to 2.4 per cent in 2011. Depending on the forecast, it will likely slow further to between 1.5 and 2.1 per cent this year.

And that's gross domestic product, which includes population growth of about 1.2 per cent a year. Take away the fact there are more people in the country producing and spending, and the picture looks very different.

Canadian TV viewers to get more flexibility to choose their channels

Canadian viewers frustrated with paying for television channels they don't want can expect more flexible packages in light of a new ruling by broadcast regulators.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission has ruled in favour of proposals made by Bell Media and Telus Corp. to adopt a more flexible TV-package model.

"In this decision, one of our main criteria was flexibility and innovation in the packaging," said Denis Carmel, a spokesman for the CRTC.

Carmel said that while individual channels may cost more under the new model, consumers' bills may go down because they will be paying for fewer channels.

The CRTC could not provide details about the terms of the agreement, which is confidential.

The ruling reflects a

Eurozone. Germany saves billions as safe haven for investors amid crisis

Germany has emerged as one of the biggest beneficiaries of the European financial crisis.

The bond markets have demanded that countries such as Italy and Spain pay prohibitively high borrowing costs to sell their debt amid worries over their sluggish economies and creaking government finances. Such high interest rates will burden these countries' state coffers for years to come.

Financially healthy Germany, meanwhile, has secured billions of euros in debt at rec-

GUN CRIME IN OTTAWA: DODGE CITY IT AIN'T

that block-party horror total is zero. Toronto has logged 30 homicides in 2012 so far. Ottawa has had three.

Last week, as Toronto reeled from its second mass shooting in as many months and Aurora, Colo., suffered its own unspeakable massacre, it seemed pure civic self-absorption to worry about gun violence here in Ottawa.

But Ottawa police pointed to a troubling rise in shooting incidents, much of it gang-related. Last year, police responded to 23 such calls. This year the tally's already up to 29. Sure, it's scary. A gun can turn any loser into a menace, and though many of these shootings resulted in no injuries of last week's attempts were total misses - it was just blind, blessed luck the intended victims or bystanders weren't shot. Before you start waddling around in this heat decked out in Kevlar, though, a little perspective. As a minion of the sensationalistic, if-it-bleeds-it-leads news media, I'm not here to calm you down. But, seriously, calm down. Crime statistics

Some cities have real problems. In Toronto, 31 people have been shot in the past week, including that blockparty horror show. In Ottawa the total is zero. Toronto has logged 31 homicides in 2012 so far. Ottawa has had three.

Many U.S. cities, like Chicago, with 251 murders so far this year, would kill for a body count as low as Toronto's, although that might be counterproductive. That poor city's murder rate is up 38 per cent over last year, but even there the long-term trend is steeply downward, having dropped 82 per cent between 1990

Crime statistics are a fair indication of your (slim) chances of being victimized in Ottawa, but they're of limited use if you actually have been. It's a small comfort that, overall, bad things happened to relatively few people besides you, and fewer this year than last.

I experienced my own localized crime wave a few years ago, and it messed with my perspective.

One evening, about three blocks from my apartment, a couple of young gentlemen came up from behind and attacked me with improvised weapons, a leather strap with a metal buckle and what looked like a small tire iron.

I spun around, saw what I was up against, and, yup, ran like hell. But I slipped rounding a corner and they were on me. They demanded money, a perversely welcome indication that this was a business call and not just a random assault.

The mugging cost me a couple of superficial bruises to body and dignity, $20 and the loose change in my wallet, and, in the short term, my peace of mind. A woman in a neighbouring house saw what had happened and called 911. I dealt with paramedics and police, wrote a statement, looked at mug shots couple of days later and that was the end of it, except for a lingering humiliation and a reluctance to go back out and walk down my own street at night.

It got worse a couple of months later when someone broke into my apartment. The loss was even more meagre this time: a screen kicked in, a jar of change poured out on the bed with most of the silver picked out, and everything else left pretty much as it was. Insultingly enough, my possessions were apparently deemed not worth pawning.

I didn't even bother reporting the burglary, but for a while afterwards, I felt relief every time I came home and the place hadn't been invaded.

The cop who took my statement after I was mugged commented that mine wasn't the sort of neighbourhood where one expected such things. In my experience before and since, Ottawa in general isn't that kind of neighbourhood.

These days, when I leave home, I'm more worried about leaving a stove element on than returning to find the place ransacked, and I walk anywhere I damned well please

This city is safe, it's yours, and it will take more than a few jackasses with handguns to change that.

A Warner Bros. executive

emailed a fact sheet about The Dark Knight Rises to Hollywood reporters a few days ago and ended with two hopeful syllables for the film's box-office prospects: "Ka ching." Cash registers have indeed been ringing at theatres worldwide this weekend as millions shell out for the finale to Christopher Nolan's epic Batman trilogy. But the shootings that left 12 dead and 58 wounded at a Dark Knight Rises screening in Colorado on Friday have silenced the usual box-office crowing by studios to let the world know they've unleashed another blockbuster. Warner, the studio behind the Batman flicks, decided to hold off on re leasing debut numbers for The Dark Knight Rises this weekend out of respect to the shooting victims and their families. Other studios followed suit, saying that like Warner, they would not issue their usual Sunday estimates, waiting instead until Monday, when they normally release final dollar counts for the weekend. There's no doubt that The Dark Knight Rises will be the No. 1 film in America and beyond. Before Warner opted against weekend box-office reporting, the studio announced that the film took in $30.6 million domestically from shows that started just after midnight Friday. ## The 20-year itch Unwilling to start collecting dust in the seat crack of pop music, a spate of bands whose heydays are a couple decades in the rear view are back with a vengeance. Hollaback No Doubt, Garbage, Cranberries, and I Mother Earth, and, not to be left out of the fold, The Backstreet Boys, are once again back in the spotlight.

MIKE DOJC

Backstreet Boys

Heyday: 1996-2000

Kevin, AJ, Brian, Howie, and Nick are back alright...but are they still everything you need? While the aging heartthrobs released a pair of albums in Kevin's absence, '07s Unbreakable and '09s This is Us, the band's core audience has been inconsolable since the oft-goateed member left. The reunion kicks off August 31 with a free concert in Central Park. A new album and a fullscale tour set for spring of next year is also in the works. Fans who can't wait that long to get their fix of returning singer Kevin Richardson can hunt down a pair of indie flicks he starred in this year: The Casserole Club, a wife-swapping drama set in the 1960s, and The Bloody Indulgent, a vampire musical.

Signature Songs: I Want it That Way, Show me the Meaning, As Long as You Love Me

The Cranberries

Heyday: 1993-1999

This Limerick-Irelandbased quartet hadn't released a studio album since 2001, and fans were missing their lush and lilting brand of poignant sonic dreamscapes. Seam-lessly alternating between sweet "di, do-do doo" lullabies and more attitudinally tart fare, the Cranberries are at their best when they temper their melodic sweetness with notes of sour anguish. The band sticks to their knitting on 2012's Roses, re-teaming with their original producer Stephen Street to recapture their magic. During their downtime, singer Dolores O'Riordan dropped a pair of solo albums and lead guitarist Noel Hogan delved into electronica starting up Monoband, which spun into the side project's current incarnation, Arkitekt. Since reconvening, the Cranberries have been busy busting out tunes on the road and will be on a European swing this coming fall with stops from Bucharest to Barcelona and many points between.

Signature Songs: Dreams, Linger, Zombie

Garbage

Heyday: 1995-2001

With a name that gives a wry wink at the dispos able nature of pop music, Garbage, assembled by Butch Vig (the super producer behind Nirvana's Nevermind), and a couple of his rock-vet pals, was originally a side project. Tapping Angelfish singer Shirley Manson to front the band made them one of the decade's steamiest acts. After seven years of hibernation following the underrated Bleed Like Me, Garbage returned with the nostalgia-mining Not Your Kind of People. Garbage's new material recycles the post-Grunge underpinnings of their self-titled debut and melds it with the spit-shined polish of their sophomore release Version 2.0 to create a vital new sound. During their self imposed exile pouty-lipped Manson stole scenes as a chilly yet sexy liquid metal Terminator in FOX's The Sarah Connor Chronicles while Vig earned himself a Grammy producing Green Day's 21st Century Breakdown.

Signature Songs: Only Happy When It Rains, Stupid Girl, I Think I'm

I Mother Earth

Heyday: 1993-1999

After an eight-year layoff since disbanding in the aftermath of 2003's The Quicksilver Meat Dream, IME was resurrected when they took the stage at Toronto's Sound Academy this past March for a pair of sold out shows. Bryan Byrnes, who took over from Edwin on 1999's Blue Green Orange, is back behind the mic and the Tanna brothers Christian and Jagori unleashing the band's beefy sonic onslaught on drums and guitar while Bruce Gordon checks back in on bass. The new single We Got the Love is a hard rocking, high-wattage pick-me-up that stands up to the band's most loved hits and longtime fans are lapping it up. With fellow mid-90s Canadian alt-rock radio regulars Treble Charger and Tea Party also recently getting their acts back together we smell a formidable triple bill in the near future

Signature Songs: Levitate, One More Astronaut, Another Sunday

No Doubt

Heyday: 1992-2001

Ska-revivalists No Doubt rocked steady throughout the 1990s but haven't jammed on new material in over a decade. Settle Down, the first single of their upcoming album Push and Shove, is a bouncy tour de force produced by Diplo (Beyoncé, M.I.A) charged by waves of Caribbean dancehall and frontwoman Gwen Stefani's infectiously perky pop-vocals. Since they've been gone the platinum blonde singer has released a pair of well-received solo albums, started a couple of fashion labels in L.A.M.B. and Harajuku Lovers, and gave birth to her two sons Kingston and Zuma. Bottle blonde bassist Tony Kanal also kept busy producing and laying down tracks with the likes of Pink and Weezer

Signature Songs: Just a Girl, Don't Speak, Hey Baby

Ricky Martin. Singer loving the Broadway life

Ricky Martin says Broadway is a monster that requires discipline, concentration and dedication, but Evita's Che is feeling so happy and so at home that he can't imagine moving for a while. In an interview at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in Times Square, New York, which houses the musical based on the life of Argentina's first lady Eva Peron. Martin said he's never been challenged as much as in the Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber spectacle and that this is, precisely, what has him "hooked" on Broadway, where he debuted in 1996 as Marius in Les Miserables. Martin has already decided to stay in the Big Apple at least for a while, calling it "fascinating" and multicultural city for his soon-to-betwins, Matteo and Valentino.

You were born for the stage and certainly for one on Broadway. Any immediate plans to work on other musicals or plays after Evita?

I love being onstage. I love what's happening with Evita. The reaction that I get every night from the audience, the emotions, the feeling, what I'm feeling every night onstage is, is simply beautiful. It's never the same, you never get bored, it's very challenging. Do I want to come back to Broadway?

I would love to do Broadway the rest of my life! Because it's challenging, because it makes me grow as an actor, as an entertainer, as an artist, and that's what I need, that's what I'm hooked on

Would you consider staying here in New York?

I AM staying here in New York! Those are my plans. Anything can change in show business, you know how it everything changes from one day to the other. But my idea is to stay here for a while.

Whooping cough rising

The U.S. appears to be headed for its worst year for whooping cough in more than five decades, with the number of cases rising at an epidemic rate that experts say may reflect a problem with the effectiveness of the vaccine.

Nearly 18,000 cases have been reported so far more than twice the number seen at this point last year, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said Thursday. At this pace, the number for the entire year will be the highest since 1959, when 40,000 illnesses were reported.

Nine children have died, and health officials called on adults — especially pregnant women and those who spend time around children — to get a booster shot as soon as possible.

Whooping cough has generally been increasing for years, but this year's spike is startling. Health investigators are trying to figure out what's going on, and theories include better detection and reporting of cases, some sort of evolution in the bacteria that cause the illness, or shortcomings in the vaccine.

Alana's husband had never donated sperm before. Although the mother of three had contemplated egg donation from time-to-time, her husband had never considered the opportunity to help a family in need, both before their marriage and after.

But when the couple's friends Jennie and Susan watched yet another sperm donor fall through, Alana and her husband decided to present them with an offer.

Two years ago after Alana welcomed her third child, Jennie and Susan were approaching the year mark of a struggle to get pregnant. Many legal barriers prevented the aspiring mommies from even getting married, let alone becoming parents — a predicament that deeply touched both Alana and her husband

Only after some questioning about her husband's health and family medical history — which included no major genetic diseases — did the two mommies green light the idea. The "crunchy, natural life-style" ladies were adamant about attempting a more "organic" method for conception before going the IVF route. Upon removing heterosexual sex from the table, the soon-to-be mommies decided on athome insemination and asked Alana's husband to deposit a sperm sample in a sterile cup at their home. Within the next hour, the couple used a sterile medical syringe, similar to what is used with infants, inside Susan. Although the couple was prepared to go through five rounds of athome insemination before trying more conventional approaches, the mothers conceived on their second round a rarity for their preferred

"Jennie and Susan are two of the most loving, awesome people we have ever met and if anyone deserved to be mothers it was them. My husband and I both feel honoured and touched that we could be a part of helping them realize their dream of being parents," Alana tells Mommyish. "But in the end they are her mommies and my husband and I are just family friends."

First peanuts, now eggs

Doctors have reversed allergies in some children and teens by giving them tiny daily doses of problem foods, gradually training their immune systems to accept them. In the best test of this yet, about a dozen kids were able to overcome allergies to eggs, one of the most ubiquitous foods, lurking in everything from pasta and veggie burgers to mayonnaise and even marshmallows. Some of the same doctors used a similar approach on several kids with peanut allergies a few years ago. Don't try this yourself, though. It takes special products, a year or more and close supervision because severe reactions remain a risk, say doctors involved in the study, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

"This experimental therapy can safely be done only by properly trained physicians," says a statement from Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, the federal agency that sponsored the study.

It didn't work for everyone, and some dropped out of the study because of allergic reactions. But the results "really do show there is promise for future treatment" and should be tested now in a wider group of kids, said the study's leader, Dr. A. Wesley Burks, pediatrics chief at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Training a child's immune system to tolerate even small amounts of egg to prevent a major reaction was the study's goal. It enrolled 55 children ages five to 18. Forty were given tiny daily amounts of powdered egg white, the part that usually causes the allergy. The other 15 were given a dummy treatment for comparison. The amounts were increased every two weeks until kids in the treatment group were eating about one third of an egg each day. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FOOD

World screams for Canadian gelato

GREENWOOD DAVIS

What does it take for a Canadian to beat out a host of artisans from around the world in the land where Gel-ato reigns king?

Some Quebec maple syrup, California pecans (toasted and infused with Maldon sea salt, as well as caramelized) and a whole lot of moxy.

Luckily, James Coleridge has all three.
The Ottawa-born gelato whose Vancouver shop Bella Gelateria regularly has lineups out the door at its sole location, got word this month that he's won two of the coveted top prizes at the Gelato Festival in Florence, Italy.

The competition is the world's largest for gelato makers and Coleridge beat out 29 Italians for the top

"I consider myself a custodian of an old-world process," says Coleridge, who admits he "jumped around like a jellybean for about a half hour" when he heard the news that he'd won both the technical jury prize and the People's Choice awards.

Being an artisanal gelato maker is about more than the all-natural ingredients that go into the process, Coleridge says. He uses his Italian training, skill, artistry and dedication to whip up fresh small batches of his Gelato creations (that range from Tahitian Vanilla to the award-winning Noce Pecan e Sciroppo d'Acero Canadese - Pecan and Canadian Maple Syrup) from original recipes that can take as long as 45 days to perfect.

Still, he says there are plenty of ways you can enjoy gelato at home.

"Gelato is best eaten fresh and not stored in a freezer for much time," he cautions.

Another tip: "Serve it using a tablespoon, never an ice cream scoop! (Scoops) are an ice cream thing," says Cole-ridge who is clear, "Gelato is not ice cream. We don't use their paraphernalia." HEATHER GREENWOOD DAVIS IS A FREELANCE WRITER BASED IN TORONTO. FIND HER AT GLOBETROTTINGMAMA.COM

Here are Coleridge's three tips for finding the best

- Flavours. Stay away from flavours that are too reminiscent of ice cream (Cookies and Cream and Bubble Gum, for example) but consider opening your palate to flavours that aren't exclusively Italian like Akbar Mashti (saffron, rosewater) and Black
- Close your eyes. Pretty syrups and gummy bears have no place in a good artisanal gelato. If they have to sell it to you by what it looks like, it probably doesn't have much taste.
- Watch for windows. Beware big, open air serving windows. Gelato is sensitive. Even one ice crystal can wreak havoc on its taste. Arti-sanal makers make small batches by hand and seal them tight against the freezers in which they are stored.

Your humanities degree may soon become ancient history

BRUCE WAISH

-rld News in Philadelphia

Toby Miller's latest book is his most confrontational, polemic piece of writing to date. In Blow Up the Humanities — which will be released by Temple University Press in August — the longtime author and media studies professor skewers his own field, painting humanities departments as antiquated relics with an overtly class-conscious agenda.

"It used to be that you couldn't get into Yale unless you were proficient in ancient Greek. The idea was that they would produce 'cultivated gentlemen who would be leaders of the country.'

Eventually they dropped classical languages as the core and turned toward English literature and so on," says Miller, who is the chair of the media and cultural studies program at the University of California,

"At the same time the big land-grant universities were looking for a much more applied form of humanities. ... That's why if you go to the University of Michigan or Illinois, you learn speech communication - but if you go to Yale or Harvard, you learn English literature

Pointing to a downward trend in student engagement, research and publication opportunities, Miller proposes a decidedly practical curriculum focused on the job skills most students need.

Whether you work in PR or Metro, Greenpeace or Coca-Cola, you need to know how to design a webpage, the basics of narrative art, how software and hardware work and the conditions of labour in those areas," says Miller.

"I'm looking for something that's very applied, in the way business is, but also has a critical edge, dealing with questions of labour and the environment, and not just how you can make a buck and become a corporate

Els wins Open after Scott falters

PGA. Australian Adam Scott bogeys final four holes while Els finds something special Ernie Els felt something special could happen at the British Open, and it did.

All because of a collapse by Adam Scott that no one imagined.

Four shots ahead with four holes to play — after eight straight holes with nothing worse than par — Scott bogeyed them all and had to fight back tears on the 18th green Sunday as the magnitude

"I'm going to try and come and see you this evening. I'm supposed to go to Canada but I think I'm going to blow that thing off." In his victory speech, Ernie Els said that he planned to visit his family in London. His quip about skipping the Canadian Open sent staff scrambling to try to confirm he was coming. They could not confirm, though the South African said in his speech he would try to get to Canada on Tuesday.

of his meltdown began to sink

Els, who started the final round six shots behind, fin-ished off a flawless back nine with a 15-foot birdie putt for a 2-under 68 that looked as if it would do little more than lock up another runner-up finish at Royal Lytham and St. Annes. Instead, he wound up with his second British Open — the other one was 10 years ago at Muirfield — and fourth major championship. "Amazing," Els said. "I'm still numb. It still hasn't set in. It will probably take quite a few days because I haven't been in this position for 10 years, obviously. So it's just crazy, crazy, crazy getting here."

The celebration was muted, unlike his other three majors.

"First of all, I feel for Adam Scott. He's a great friend of mine," Els said. "Obviously, we both wanted to win very badly. But you know, that's the nature of the beast. That's why we're out here. You win, you lose. It was my time for some reason."

Scott said: "I had it in my hands with four to go. I managed to hit a poor shot on each of the closing four holes. Look, I played so beautifully for most of the week. I shouldn't let this bring me down.

Í can't justify anything that I've done out there. I didn't finish the tournament well today. But next time — I'm sure there will be a next time, and I can do a better job of it."

Weightlifting. Medal contender Girard inspired by Canada's former strong-women

The heaviest thing on Christine Girard's shoulders at the Olympics may be the legacy left by the Canadian female weightlifters that came before her.

But it's not a burden that slows her down. It only adds extra inspiration for London.

Girard, who grew up in Rouyn-Noranda, Que., is thinking particularly of Maryse Turcotte, who competed for Canada in the 2000 and 2004 Summer Olympics and won gold in two Commonwealth Games and one Pan American Games before she retired.

"I have enormous respect for Maryse and for what she did," Girard said from White Rock, B.C., where she trains and lives with her husband and coach Walter Bailey. "She was one of the first to stand out at the international level.

"Maryse showed what it's possible to do, she dared to do it. I want to do the same thing and hope to push things further in the future."

Girard hopes to add to the history in London, where she will compete in the 63-kilogram event on July 31. If she makes the podium, she'll be the first Canadian woman to get an Olympic medal in that discipline.

The 27-year-old, who was born in Elliot Lake, Ont., is not discouraged by incidents of doping within her sport.

"They have their reasons and I know this is not always their choice as an athlete," she said of those who cheat. "My goal is to show that if you work hard you can beat the others. Maybe it takes more years of training to get to that point — for me, it's 17 years — but I honestly think it's possible." Girard is on her way to prov-

Girard is on her way to proving her point. She lifted 135 kilograms in the clean-and-jerk in training earlier this year — tying the Olympic record — and recently hoisted 136 kilograms.

"I've spent years testing that every month," she said. "If I'm capable of doing that in training, then others can too."

Girard, who was fourth at the Beijing Games, holds the record in the snatch and in total weight in her class at the Commonwealth Games — 60 kilograms — and the Pan American Games (63 kilograms).

temperatures drop

Two piece or not two piece: That is the question.

Chilly weather and evening matches at the London Olympics may force a cover-up in beach volleyball — from bikinis to long johns.

"We need it to keep our warm," Australian muscles competitor Tamsin Hinchley said Sunday. "It's an extremely strenuous sport.'

no, she thought the atmosphere would still be rocking at Horse Guards Parade.

"The regulations are that it's tight fitting, so if that's what you're there for, whatever."

The gear has already been a common — even if not entirely popular — sight on the world beach volleyball tour this year. It's now part of the uniform. Hinchley said.

"Obviously we're that sport, we're the sport that wears the bikinis and we're the sport

- and has grown rapidly since, peaking at the Beijing Games four years ago.
- This year's competition at the temporary arena could even top Beijing with 500,000 fans expected for about 100 matches that's physically out there," she said, "But we're jumping and running and sliding on the sand. We'll be using it (cold-weather gear) to benefit us physically."

used to formal military displays featuring soldiers in scarlet buttoned jackets and bearskin hats.

The famous Horse Guards Parade location, as well as the skimpy bikinis, shorts and sleeveless T-shirts, will likely make it one of the hottest tickets of the Olympics. Organizers hope the weather will co-operate as they try to bring a slice of sunny Santa Monica or Sydney's Bondi Beach to what has been a rainy central London.

BY MICHAEL WIESENBERG

↑ Aries

March 21 - April 20

Think big, act big and big rewards are sure to follow The Sun in the most dynamic area of your chart means you won't let anything come between you and success. Life is a game and you love winning games.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21 Make some changes on the home front this week - the bigger the better. How can you lighten up your living space? What can you do to give yourself a more relaxing environment? Don't wait -

ll Gemini

just do it.

You don't need to raise your voice to make yourself heard but you probably will. You want to make sure everyone colleagues and loved ones alike - knows where you are coming from, and where you are going to.

9 Cancer June 22 - July 23

You seem to believe that you have been hard done by. Why is that? Maybe it's not other people's fault, maybe it's your own. If you want to change your luck, first change the way you look at the world.

9 Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Don't worry if you have not done as much as you should have in recent weeks because the Sun in your sign will give you a boost. But don't wait for good things to be given to vou – aet them vourself.

W Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23 A life of ease may sound inviting but what would you have to show for it in the long-term? Not much. You have so many talents and it's about time you started using them.

△ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Friends and family members will go out of their way to assist you today and if you are sensible and act on their advice you will do well on several levels. Your social life is about to pick up dramatically too.

M Scorpio Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

The Sun in Leo at this time of vear leads to changes on the work front and it is important that you do not resist what happens over the next few weeks. Go with the flow and you'll do very well indeed.

プ Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

It's time to let go of beliefs and opinions that have been holding you back and to replace them with some thing a bit more up-to-date. You don't have to follow the herd but you do have to widen your perspective.

b Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

The planets are urging you to be more adventurous. There are occasions when it is right to take risks and this is one of them, so stop playing for time and start making things happen, at home and at work.

🗫 Aquarius Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Put other people's interests first over the next few days, both in your personal life and at work. If you go out of your way to make life easy for others they will make it up to you big time later on.

H Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20 Tear up an existing arrangement and replace it with something more to your liking. Others may not be happy about it but it is your happiness you should be thinking of.
